

British Values

11th-17th May

Democracy

Outer space does not belong to any one person or country, this was agreed by 109 countries in the Outer Space Treaty.

No country can lay claim to the moon, asteroids or other celestial bodies, space is open to all.